

LUCIA LOFFREDA

CONSULTANT

SUMMARY

I am a Consultant working on a range of consultancy assignments across the UK and international research landscapes. I have supported the delivery of over 70 projects for clients, particularly in open science and international development, including government departments, research funders, publishers, and universities. I apply a range of research approaches to support the delivery of consultancy projects, including desk-based literature reviews, quick scoping reviews and rapid evidence assessments, qualitative and thematic data analysis, interviews, focus groups and online surveys. I am a proficient user of NVivo, a qualitative data analysis software to support the delivery of many of our projects. I am familiar with working in international contexts and understanding international research environments. In my role at Research Consulting, I have engaged with stakeholders and clients across the globe.
